When I was 20, I went to the United States. I wanted to see as much of the United States as I could, and I didn't have much money.

Travelling by plane was too _____, so I decided to travel by _____. It was cheap but tiring.

The _____ in the US are much longer than you realise – I had to sit for a long time to get from one place to another. It was not always boring, though: Americans are very friendly to people who come from _____ countries, and I often had interesting conversations with my fellow travellers. Several times I was invited to people's homes for the night, and so I got _____ meals and didn't have to pay for a hotel.

One Saturday I was at the bus station in Austin, Texas, when my _____ and traveller's cheques were stolen. Luckily my _____ was in another pocket, so I didn't have to go to all the trouble of finding the nearest British consulate. I made a _____ call to my brother to ask him to cancel my traveller's cheques immediately; but then I didn't know what to do. I couldn't get new cheques until the following Monday, I only had enough change to buy myself a cup of coffee. I decided to do that and try to think things out. In the café I started talking to a student and told him about my problem. He said he would lend me some money and invited me to stay with him until Monday. He seemed to be a nice person, which was lucky, because I really had no _____. As it happened, we got on very well; we write to each other regularly and he has come to visit me in England. So a _____ found a new American friend for me.

The well-dressed, gray-haired woman was crying her eyes out. She had just been fined $100 by the judge because a month ago her dog made a mess on the front lawn of the courthouse.

"[] After I paid the fare and gave the driver a dollar tip, I turned around and saw that Poopsie had made a mess. I didn't have any plastic bags, so I said, 'Well, Poopsie, let's go home. []"

"We were just starting home when I heard this voice out of nowhere: 'Excuse me, ma'am. Is that your dog?' [] It was an officer of the law. Well, of course, it was my dog. [] As its owner, it's your responsibility to dispose of that deposit. See the sign over there? I'm going to have to write you a citation.'

"I asked him what sign he was talking about. He pointed all the way down to the end of the block. One little sign, a block away! How could anyone see that? [] The officer said that I could fight the ticket. He said the judge was a nice old man who owned four dogs. So I said, 'OK, thank you, I'll fight the ticket.'

"So when I went to court, I dressed Poopsie up in his prettiest ribbons and made extra sure he did his business first. We were both so excited. I just knew the judge and Poopsie would hit it off.

"But do you know what happened when we got inside? They had a different judge, a judge who is allergic to dogs, and he immediately started sniffing, coughing, sneezing, and looking around. [] He fined me $100 on the way out without even giving me a chance to talk about Poopsie's chronic dyspepsia. It was terrible! []"
